

Pigs on a Boat

On a hot, sunny day, three pigs decided to go for a boat ride. They climbed into the sail boat and started to float down the river. Soon the clouds came out. It began to rain. The wind got strong, and the waves grew bigger and bigger. The little boat bobbed up and down. Water was coming into the boat. The first pig thought it would be a good idea to jump out and swim. He said goodbye to his brothers and dove into the water. The second pig paddled harder fighting the waves as they came. Soon he, too, grew tired and thought it would be best to jump out and swim. He said goodbye to his brother and dove into the water. The third pig was all alone. He paddled hard, but the boat still rocked back and forth. He was about to jump out and join his brothers when the weather started to change. The wind stopped blowing, the waves got smaller, and the sun came out. It was a beautiful day. The third pig sailed down the river. He waved to his brothers and enjoyed the rest of his day.
